Comprehensive care

“Over the last years, care delivery for people with chronic conditions or frailty has gradually shifted from a mostly disease-specific approach to a more integrated or comprehensive approach in which the multiple health and social care needs of these people are addressed.”

- Well-coordinated and proactive approach to health and social care needs (comprehensive needs assessment)
- Delivery of multiple interventions
- Patient-centeredness (shared decision making)
- Involvement of professionals from multiple disciplines.
